ORIGINAL POETRY.

Te O. W. H. I read your very witty lines,

To my old maiden Aunt, "The height of the Ridiculous," One evening at Nahant.

And to have seen that gay old dame, It would have made you roar, She laughed till all her teeth dropped out,-Then tumbled on the floor. A spell of giggling then she had,

Which lasted many days, The Doctor said she must not see One of your funny lays. But ah! one morning she was found Quite cold upon the hearth,-

By stealth your poems she had got,

And died of very mirth. "We do pray for mercy, and that same prayer Doth teach us all to render deeds of mercy

Who hath no mercy, -he whose heart is cold, Nor heeds the tale by gentle pity told; Whose callous heart no soft emotion knows, Who never melted at the suppliant's woes, Whom children's cry nor parent's prayer can move, Nor the soft plaint of holy wedded love: Angelic mercy ne'er whose heart hath won Who spurns the father pleading for his son; Or, Pyrrhus like, who adds one victim more, The parent slaughters in his first born's gore-Surely his soul shall no glad haven find, The furies scourge him, hell's dread agents bind, As mercy none he gave—none shall he feel,
None shall regard him, or his last appeal.
W. H. G.

> From the American Monthly. SONNET .- By PARK BENJAMIN.

'Tis Winter now-but Spring will blossom soon, And flowers will lean to the embracing air— And the young buds will vie with them to share Each zephyr's soft caress,-and when the Moon Bends her new silver bow, as if to fling Her arrowy lustre through some vapor's wing— The streamlets will return the glance of Night From their clear gliding mirrors,—set by Spring Deep in rich frames of clustering chrysolite, Instead of Winter's crumbled sparks of white. So, dearest! shall our loves, though frozen now By cold unkindness, bloom like buds and flowers, Like fountains flash, -- for Hope, with smiling brow, Tells of a Spring, whose sweets shall all be ours.

BOSTON MORNANG POST.

TUESDAY, MARCH 28, 1837.

For the Boston Morning Post. REMOVAL OF THE DEPOSITES.

The author of the " History of Banks" has, in general, shown considerable fairness and impartiality in his statements and remarks. But there is one passage to which this praise cannot be justly applied. Speaking of the efforts of the late bank, to procure the renewal of its charter, and the opposition made by the government party, he unjustly attributes the removal of the deposites solely to a cause, which, if it existed at all, was altogether secondary, and of little weight, compared with the real cause. Indeed, he almost contradicts himself upon the same page. He first ascribes that removal wholly to resentment, enmity, or a spirit of revenge, and then admits, immediately after, that the measure was absolutely " necessary," and an act of " prudence." It being indispensably necessary for the public good, why should dishonorable motives be assigned, without proof ? "In the course of this political squabble," says the writer, " the passions of both parties had been highly irritated; and the leaders of the prevailing party swore in their wrath, that during the remainder of its existence, the bank should enjoy no privilege and make no profit, of which they had the power to deprive it, HENCE the Remov. of the Deposites, in the summer of 1833."-p. 84.

Now, the truth is, the prevailing party swore no such thing in their wrath; but the public good, separate from all party feeling and party motives, absolutely required that such a measure should be adopted. This he admits; but he assigns only a part of the true reasons for it.

" Notwiths anding all that has been said to the contrary," says this writer afterwards, " that act of the President's was clearly legal, and if we recollect that the charter of the bank was to expire in less than three years, and that it was necessary seasonably to arrange some other system for the keeping and disbursement of the public moneys, we shall be inclined to pronounce that celebrated removal, not only as an act of punishment, but an act of prudence."-p. 84. It is indeed true, that it was necessary some other system should be arranged and perfected as far as possible, before the expiration of the bank charter; for not only would a sudden and unprepared change of system have created great embarrassments in the treasury department, but such would have been the dread of its effects, and the fear of their consequences, that, at the last moment, it is not improbable the renewal of the charter might, thus aided, have been carried through Congress. Such a dangerous crisis, common prudence could not but foresee, and consequently endeavor to prevent.

But this was not all. The bank had been and was then employing the public deposites, in creating public distress. It was not only calling in its own loans, and thus distressing its own borrowers, but it was, by means of these surplus funds of the government, draining the State banks throughout the Union of their specie, and hoarding it unnecessarily in their own vaults, for the express purpose of creating universal distress and complaint, and thus, by means of public clamor, compelling Congress to submit to a renewal of the charter. Removing these deposites served as a double check to their designs. It deprived them o so much funds, and of the power of injuring the State banks, and it also conferred upon the State banks the power, which they immediately proceeded to exercise, of loaning so much more money to the trading community, and of thus rendering it a most important assistance, of which it stood in the utmost need. The necessity of such a measure to the common weal, was so palpably evident, that nothing can be more illiberal and unjust, than to ascribe it to sinister motives, to mere party resentment, and to the exclusive considerations of a selfish party policy.

For the Boston Morning Post. Mr Greene: - A full reply, and, as I conceive, a full refutation, could easily be made to each paragraph of " og 's" communication in Saturday's Post, with no other trouble than the mere writing it. But such a controversy would only occupy a large space in your paper, which you would not, perhaps, be willing so to apply. H's answers appear to me to be either misrepresentations of my true meaning, or evasions of the real points of which I was treating. As I had nothing to conceal, or to evade, or to mystify, the language used was so clear and unequivocal, that it seems almost impossible to misun. derstand it. Indeed, a candid re-perusal will, I think, be a sufficient answer to " (5"'s" last.

As a specimen of his rejoinder, I will quote one passage, because it is very short. He quotes me thus-"Again, it is NOT much more a custom now with small banks, &c.," says P. "This," says &, is "authority, not argument; and it is no reflection upon a man's good sense to take it for what it is worth and no more." Here he affects to treat my "authority" "for what it is worth, and no more," when it is his authority, and not mine, on which the question depends. He had made an assertion, without the least proof, and on that mere assertion his own authority had founded an argument, I denied the authority, and of course the argument. And now he calls upon me to prove that it is not as he said; to prove a negative! He calls my denial " authority;" and thinks he is reasoning soundly, and substantiating his own argument, by supposing my denial, or my "authority," as he calls it, of no value. This is to me entirely a new way of reasoning. I denied his assertion, because I knew it to be incorrect; and I deny it still. Let him show it to be true, and then he may reason from it. So of the rest.

Metropolitan Magazine, American Edition, Vol. III, No 1 .- New York: Theodore Foster .- Among the contributors to this Magazine, we read the names of Marryatt, the popular novelist; Thomas Campbell, the poet; Lady and Sir Charles Morgan; Willis* and Montgomery; Mrs Gore, the celebrated female novelist, and an ingenious satirist of fashionable follies; Warren, the author of the Diary of a Physician, and William Howitt, the Quaker. Such an array of talent among its contributors, ought to render this periodical one of the best of the age. The lady will either in a very grave tone reply, 'I'm sorry you think so,' immediately turn the conversation to another subject, and look at us for a month afterwards, as if she detested the sight of us; or she will unceremoniously contradict us, and say that we are quite mistaken, for that she has always been considered a rather over strict mother, and that her children are patterns of industry and steadin ss."

Mr Editor .- I notice that the Mayor and Aldermen have ordered that all hav and straw that comes to this city over the southern roads and bridges, shall stand for sale and be weighed at the south scales, and all from the northern bridges and ferr es, at the north scales. I would ask what is the object of this order? Is it intended to preserve the office of the southern weigher (at present nearly a sinecure) for the sake of supporting the venerable Ebenizer Clough? Much better to pay him a yearly pension than to discommode in this way the large number of inhabitants of the city and vicinity, who buy and sell

It can neither benefit the buyer nor seller. The hay is at present nearly all sold and weighed at the north scales, and for this plain reason, that it is much better for all to make tracks. who buy or sell hay to go to one place, and the north scales are the most convenient of the two.

But, besides being inexpedient, the order cannot be enforced, for no penalty is attached to it, and no fine or punishment can be imposed on those who do not comply with

One would suppose from reading the order, that the Mayor and Aldermen possessed unlimited power over farmers and others bringing produce to market, and could tell them that those who come over one bridge should have privileges, which those who come over other bridges should

It is hoped that the Mayor and Aldermen will exercise a little common sense, and repeal the order before it takes effect, and save our southern farmers from the evil consequences of an unjust and partial law,

For the Boston Morning Post. The Common .- The time is near at hand when this grand reservoir of healthful air will again resume its holiday attire, and again be peopled with admiring thousands. One more outlay is necessary to complete its beautiful appearance: a light iron fence should be placed around the Burial Ground; the expense would not be great, and could be easily de rayed by subscription. We have reason to be proud of this beautiful promenade. Its verdant carpet; its stately and time-honored trees; its hills and dales; and the commanding view of the suburban scenery which it presents to the enraptured eye, are subjects for the lovers of the sublime and beautiful in nature. and fruitful themes for the pencil of the painter, and the Toads .- It is a common notion that these beautiful little animals suck poison from the earth. Now, although this opinion is a fallacy, the toad is, nevertheless, one of the most useful animals in the world to the gardener. The toad lives entirely on animal food, eats it alive-and cares not a fig for Dr Graham. The grubs and insects which he devours are very injurious to the young plants which are cultivated for the table. He comes out at night when the dampness of the air is agreeable to him, and when his prey are likewise wandering abroad, committing their depredations-and watches them as eagerly as a cat watches for mice. It is said that a few dozen of toads will destroy all the cabbage worms in a whole acre of land that is planted with cabbages, and be the means of saving the young plants from destruction.

MEMORIAL ON LICENSES.

To the Mayor and Aldermen of the City of Boston:

Gentlemen:—The season being near at hand, when applications for licenses for the sale of intoxicating drinks, will probably be made, we respectfully address you on that important subject. The people having elected you to office, have committed to you some of their dearest interests. One of the objects of government is the prevention of poverty. Will the people be satisfied if any thing is done which has a direct tendency to increase it? Another object of government is to protect the innocent from the aggressions of the gailty. Can the government be instified in sanctioning meas gailty. Can the government be justified in sanctioning measures which increase the number of criminals, and the attro city of crimes, with inial ible certainty? The citizens, with great alacrity and cheerfulness, pay heavy taxes for the sup-port of schools, because they believe that general education is rivesting intemperance, which is so strong an agent of disease and death? Economy of time, industry, frugality, judicious management of property, the means of general intelligence, regard for our social, moral and religious institutions, are large and important elements in the welfare of the city. Can you enhance these vital interests in any way so certainly and so efficiently as by refo-ing to continue the temptations and the opportunities of intemperance?

But we forbear to enlarge upon a subject, the merits of which must be so obvious to all. We cannot, however, reeopim TO DR. HERBERT, 274, Washington street, (near Avon Place.) Boston, Mass. Dear Sir:—A sense of justice to you and to humanity, induces me to make the following statements of facts, which you are at liberty to use in any way that you may think proper,—it may be the means of inducing other sufferers to apply to you. This is to certify that I was afflicted with a disease culled *Scortula, or King's Evil, for four years, for which I was attended a long time by some of the most respectable Physicians of Boston, without receiving any benefit. Having heard of Dr. Herbert's success in curing diseases, I thought I would call upon him, and did; I commenced taking his medicine according to his directious, curing diseases, I thought I would can upon him, and out; I commenced taking his medicine according to hi-directious, and in a very short time a favorable change was perceptible, and I am now perfectly cured. With every feeling of gratitude to you, Sir, as the author of the relief I have experienced as above, I subscribe myself your obedient and ever grateful servant,

Dr Loveman's Balm of Gilead is recommended to the weak, the relaxed, and debilitated, as an agreeable and speedy restorative; and considered as a cordial, is essential to the comfort of ladies of fashion, being a preventive against cold, when taken before going out to parties, balls, roots or the play. It will enliven the spirits and invigorate the mind and body, and if taken after fatigue, it will with a few hours sleep, take away all larguor consequent on broken rest, and give relief away all lacguer consequent on broken rest, and give relief from every unpleasant sensation.

It is a most valuable remedy for such diseases as are attended with the following symptoms, namely—a great straitness of the breast, with difficulty of breathing—violent palpitations of the heart, sudden flasces of heat in various parts of the body—at other times a sense of cold, as if water was poured on them—flying pains in the arms and limbs, back and belly, resembling those occasioned by the gravel—the pulse very variable, sometimes uncommonly slow, at other times arms and included the pulse very variable, sometimes uncommonly slow, at other times very variable, sometimes uncommonly slow, at other times very quick—yawning, the hiccough, frequent sighing, and a sense of suffication, as from a ball or lump in the throat—alternate fits of crying and convulsive laughing—the sleep unsound, and seldom refreshing, and the patient often troubled with horrid dreams. Much has been said by interested individuals against Medicines that are advertised, but there is a very important observation to be made respecting Dr Loveman's Balm of Gilead, that unless its operation was gentlefunctionally and efficacions, it could not have obtained the unexampled safe and efficacious, it could not have obtained the unexampled demand it has acquired.

NERVOUS DEBILITY

NERVOUS DEBILITY

"Without Health we can enjoy no Fortune; Honors, Riches, and all other advontages are useless."

Honors, Riches, and all other advontages are useless."

This Cordial has been uncommonly successful with young people who have the appearance and air of old age, who are pale, effeminate, benumbed, stupid, and even imbecile; whose bodies are become bent, whose legs are no longer able to carry them, who have an utter distaste for every thing, and are totally incapacitated. Where the stomach is frequently disordered, the body is weakened; paleness, bodily decay and emacintion succeed, and the eyes sink into the head. The virtues of Dr Loveman's Balm of Gileadere demonstrated, in oradicating the worst and most dangerous symptoms of nervous debility, and nothing has tended so much to establish the fame of this medicine, as its certain success in those complaints which strike their roots so deep in the constitution, and are so fatal to the happiness of mankind.

Dr Loveman's Balm of Gilead has risen in repute with every trial of its efficacy. Some, perhaps, unacquainted with its virtues, not having perused the Guide to Heslih, may be induced to ask what is the Balm of Gilead good for? What complaint doth it cure?—To answer this it will be necessary to "Hold the Mirror up to Nature."

Let those who are afflicted in the following manner reflect on the cause that produced such havoc upon the "wholesome appetites and powers of life:"—disordered stomach, dry cough, weakness in the voice hoarseness, shortness of breath upon the least exercise, and relaxation of the whole system. Those afflicted with paleness, languor of the eyes, weakness of sight or memory, should take time to consider Linnæus's advice, that "youth is the important period for forming a robust constitution in youth; temperance and moderation at that age are passports to happy grey hairs.

For such as have violated these precepts, then, this healing balm is suitable—complaints included in the vague appellation of Nervous and Consumptive, are those for which it is peculiarly adapted.

tion of Nervous and Consumptive, are those for which it is eculiarly adapted.

In offering this medicine to the public, I can say with confidence that they will find great benefit by using it in all diseases recommended, as I am fully acquainted with the medical qualities, as they have been discovered by myself, and are extracted from yeartables, and I can truly say, there is no earth. qualities, as they have been discovered by myseil, and are extracted from vegetables, and I can truly say, there is no earthly danger in using the medicine by any person, no matter how they may be afflicted.
